Date: February 10, 2026
Subject: Proposed Steps for Resolving the Israel-Palestine Conflict

Objective

To outline a structured plan aimed at achieving peace and stability in the Israel-Palestine region through coordinated steps involving leadership changes, citizenship grants, pardons, and eventual democratic elections.

Policy Proposal Summary

1. Leadership Transition in Israel:
    - March 15, 2026: Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu will step down from his position.
    - New Role for Netanyahu:
        - Title: “Defender of Israel”
        - Responsibility: Head of the Israel Defense Forces (IDF)
2. Citizenship for Palestinian Residents:
    - March 20, 2026: Granting of Israeli citizenship to all individuals living in Palestine.
3. Pardon for Hamas Leadership:
    - April 1, 2026: General pardon for the leadership of Hamas.
4. Democratic Elections:
    - July 4, 2026: Holding of direct presidential elections to establish a unified government of Israel on the land of Palestine.

Detailed Steps and Rationale

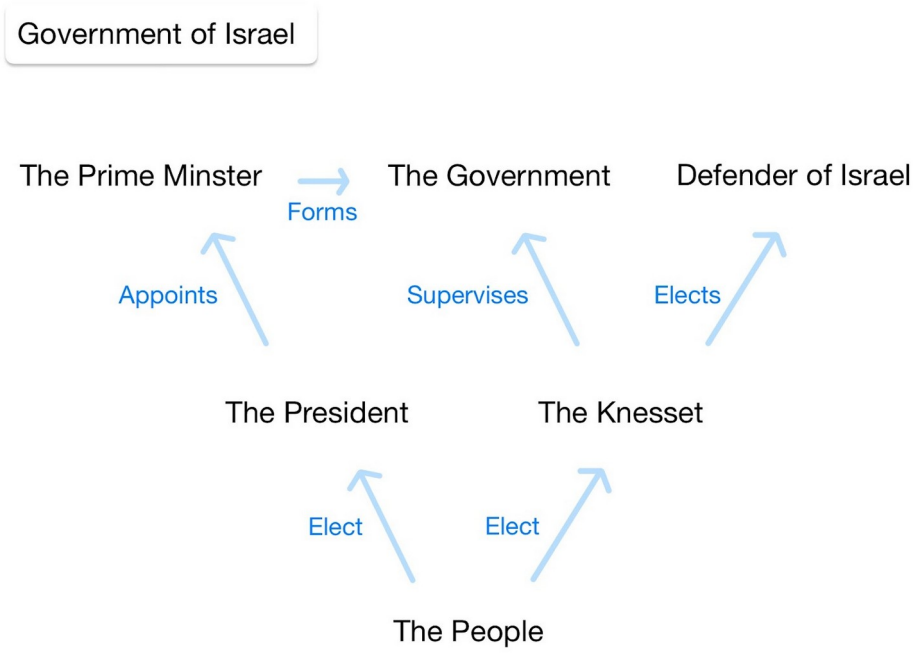

1. Leadership Transition:
    - This step aims to create a new dynamic in the Israeli leadership, with Netanyahu taking on a pivotal security role to ensure continuity and stability within the IDF, while allowing for new political leadership to emerge.
2. Granting Citizenship:
    - Providing Israeli citizenship to Palestinian residents is necessary to maintain a state. This step seeks to eliminate statelessness and provide equal rights and protections under the law.
3. Pardon for Hamas Leadership:
    - The pardon aims to facilitate reconciliation and reduce hostilities by offering an olive branch to Hamas leaders. This step is crucial for ensuring a transition.

4. Democratic Elections:

- Conducting direct presidential elections is the final step in legitimizing the new political structure and giving all citizens a voice in their governance. The President will serve a three year term and appoint a Prime Minister. The Prime Minister will form the government of Israel.

The proposed steps include a new dynamic in Israeli leadership, granting citizenship to eliminate statelessness, pardoning Hamas leadership for reconciliation, and holding democratic elections to legitimize the new political structure.
